Prostate Cancer Awareness Month in September Raises Awareness About the Importance of Early Detection to Save Men's Lives

MELVILLE, N.Y., Sept. 2, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- Henry Schein Cares, the global corporate social responsibility program of Henry Schein, Inc. (NASDAQ:HSIC), has partnered once again this year with Integrated Medical Foundation (IMF) and the Large Urology Group Practice Association (LUGPA) to help raise awareness among families across the country about the importance of putting prostate cancer screenings on the calendar for the men in their lives. September – back-to-school time for the children of many families – is also National Prostate Cancer Awareness Month, which focuses the nation's attention on this potentially deadly disease.

"We anticipate that there will be approximately 220,000 new diagnoses of prostate cancer this year, and about 28,000 people will lose their lives," said Dr. Deepak A. Kapoor, President, Advanced Urology Centers of New York; Clinical Associate Professor of Urology at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai; Chairman of Health Policy and Immediate Past-President of LUGPA; Founder and Past-President of Integrated Medical Foundation. "Prostate Cancer Awareness Month is an opportunity to remind those closest to us – fathers, grandfathers, sons, husbands and friends – to speak with their doctor to determine if prostate cancer screening is right for them. Together, we can help generations of men continue to live happy, healthy lives."

According to the American Cancer Society, prostate cancer is the most common non-skin cancer for men in America, with one out of every seven U.S. men diagnosed with the disease in their lifetime.

Additionally, prostate cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death in American men, behind only lung cancer, resulting in the deaths of about 1 in 38 men.

"Promoting wellness and raising awareness about important health issues, especially illness and disease that can be prevented through early detection, is a key component of the Henry Schein Cares mission," said Dave McKinley, President of Henry Schein Medical. "As the nation gets ready during September to prepare our children to return to the classroom, we are pleased to partner with IMF and LUGPA to educate the public about the benefits of speaking with their doctors about whether a prostate cancer screening is right for them."

In honor of the observance, Henry Schein, Inc., the world's largest provider of health care products and services to office-based dental, animal health and medical practitioners, will support IMF and LUGPA with a series of communication efforts to heighten awareness among practitioners and the public about the importance of early detection in the fight against prostate cancer. Tactics include the distribution of educational materials to practitioners, as well as public service announcements. In addition, Henry Schein will support IMF's "Pies Against Prostates" campaign, an awareness project, which encourages men and women to post on social media channels videos of themselves getting pies in their faces and challenging others to do the same in order to support greater awareness about prostate cancer.
