

Henry Schein's Chairman and CEO To Discuss The Future of Health Care At The World Summit On Innovation & Entrepreneurship

May 18, 2016

MELVILLE, N.Y., May 18, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Stanley M. Bergman, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq: HSIC), the world's largest provider of health care products and services to office-based dental, animal health and medical practitioners, will discuss how the Internet of Medical Things will transform the health care landscape at the World Summit on Innovation & Entrepreneurship (WSIE) today at 11:30 a.m. at the United Nations in New York City.

Today and tomorrow, 100 presenters from across all parts of society—designers, chief executives, innovators and entrepreneurs—will participate in conversations about new ideas, products, experiences and transformations. The two-day summit, themed "Celebrating the Crazy Ones: New Frontiers," will offer a bold and provocative exploration of what the future of business, marketplaces, digital, products, minds, machines, experiences and trans-disciplinary innovations will be like in 2020.

WSIE 2016 will examine the challenges and opportunities for enterprises to plan and create new frontiers in design, digital life, sharing economy, commerce, energy, health and the industrial Internet. Mr. Bergman will discuss the key trends shaping the future of health care, and the potential for technological advances to democratize access to health care for the underserved around the world. In addition, Bruce Lieberthal, Vice President and Chief Innovation Officer of Henry Schein, will participate in a panel discussion on May 19, entitled, "Will New Health Breakthroughs Heal the World?"

"The ability to connect to the world through a mobile device has defined the future of tomorrow. With increased integration between smart, Internet-connected machines and people, there has been a fundamental shift in how we consume, deliver and access health care," said Mr. Bergman. "At Henry Schein, we help practitioners comfortably enter or expand further into the world of interoperability, not by just looking at the individual technology and products available on the market today, but by uncovering how these solutions can best be integrated into the practice or laboratory, and by seeing how it can enhance the care they provide to patients."

Sam Hamdan, Chairman of WSIE, commented, "We are pleased to have Henry Schein represented at this year's WSIE. As the link between the creators of technology and the health care provider, Henry Schein offers technology-driven solutions that have the potential to transform the health care delivery system and change the way patients access care."

WSIE 2016 is hosted in partnership with the United Nations Conference on Trade & Development. For more information about the Summit, visit www.theWSIE.org.
