

Henry Schein Launches COVID-19 Resource Center

March 18, 2020

Online Hub Provides Dental and Medical Professionals with Critical Information Regarding the 2019 Novel Coronavirus

MELVILLE, N.Y., March 16, 2020 – Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq: HSIC) released today the COVID-19 Resource Center, a web-based hub that provides industry-specific information to help office-based dental and medical practitioners navigate the COVID-19 outbreak.

Located on Henry Schein's global website, the resource center features a collection of links and downloadable infographics to help health care professionals prepare and effectively communicate with their staff and patients as the outbreak continues to evolve. Information available on the resource center includes:

- A COVID-19 check list for practice owners with suggested steps to keep practices running smoothly;
- Links to educational videos to share with patients from key sources, including the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC);
- A downloadable infographic defining COVID-19, its symptoms, and how people can prevent the spread of the virus;
- Links to CDC and World Health Organization (WHO) web pages with critical information for dental and medical practice owners and their staff, including a "What Clinicians Need to Know" webinar.

"As the COVID-19 outbreak evolves, we at Henry Schein are committed to helping health care professionals effectively communicate to their staff and patients," said Stanley M. Bergman, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Henry Schein. "We take our role as a valuable business partner to health care professionals seriously, and we'll continue to update the COVID-19 Resource Center with the latest information that our customers can rely on to run their practices efficiently and deliver quality patient care."
