

Henry Schein Medical Helps Sports Medicine Professionals Stay on Their A-Game

April 29, 2024

Company Offers On-Demand Webinars Covering Injury Prevention and Rehabilitation, Testing and Diagnoses, and More

MELVILLE, N.Y., April 29, 2024 – Henry Schein Medical, the U.S. medical business of Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq: HSIC), is offering a series of three on-demand webinars aimed at helping sports medicine professionals enhance patient care by utilizing the latest equipment and technologies. Each webinar features expert-led sessions designed to address key areas within the profession and provide strategies that can be applied in the field.

Topics include injury prevention and rehabilitation, testing and diagnoses, and more.

The following discussions are available on-demand today:

- EKG/ECG in Action: Sports Cardiology – Dr. Christopher Tanayan, sports cardiologist at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City, provides a comprehensive outline of how he uses electrocardiograms and other modalities to modulate and reduce sudden cardiac risk for athletes.
- Point of Care Ultrasound: Family & Sports Medicine – Dr. Gregory Bratton, family and sports medicine physician and practice owner of Bratton Family + Sports Medicine in Texas, dives into how he leveraged point of care ultrasound to assess, diagnose, and accelerate treatment times for various case studies including thyroid cysts, plantar fasciitis, and others.
- Point of Care Ultrasound in Sports Medicine – Dr. Stephen Line, sports medicine physician and clinical professor at Texas A&M University, and Louis Duran, Head Football Athletic Trainer at Texas A&M University, explore case reviews of upper and lower extremity injury cases as well as various procedural applications of diagnostic ultrasound.

“Henry Schein Medical recognizes the importance of continuous learning in advancing the field of sports medicine,” said Eric Kearns, National Sales Director of Henry Schein Medical’s Athletics and Schools business. “In an ever-changing landscape of new technologies, research, and best practices, our focus is to provide sports medicine professionals with easy access and education to products, tools, and resources needed to excel in the profession. We are pleased to offer these on-demand webinars that allow practitioners to learn with flexibility and convenience as they balance demanding schedules.”
