

Henry Schein's 'Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles' Expands to Four New Cities in Its Second Year

July 13, 2007

Health Care Initiative Addresses Diseases and Risk Factors that Afflict Children

MELVILLE, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--July 13, 2007--Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq:HSIC), the largest distributor of healthcare products and services to office-based practitioners in the combined North American and European markets, announced today that "Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles," a program that promotes access to health care for underserved children, will expand to bring free medical services to children in four new cities this year. In addition to Columbia, South Carolina, where the program was launched in 2006, Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles will aid children in Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Jackson, Mississippi; Detroit, Michigan; and Richmond, Virginia.

Supported by Henry Schein Cares, the Company's global social responsibility program, Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles is cosponsored by state and local health organizations. This summer a total of more than 2,000 children will receive free health and dental screenings from local physicians, nurses, dentists and community volunteers, who check for diseases and risk factors that commonly afflict children, including hypertension, asthma, diabetes, obesity and poor oral health. Healthcare volunteers will also educate the children and their parents about ways to prevent and treat these health problems, and assist them in finding a community health care clinic or doctor's office if they do not have a regular "medical home."

"We focus Henry Schein Cares resources on programs that support underserved communities, and our mission is to increase access to health care for everyone," said Stanley M. Bergman, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Henry Schein. "We are committed to helping children across the country who are struggling with diseases that are easily treated, but often flourish because they go undiagnosed. Only in its second year, Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles will become a flagship program for Henry Schein Cares."

Henry Schein worked with the statewide Community Health Center network, local Departments of Health and Family Services, local government agencies, dental associations, churches, low-income neighborhoods, and youth and community organizations to identify children in greatest need. Beyond this recruitment, Healthy Children, Healthy Lifestyles is also open to the general public on the day it takes place in participating cities.

The program joins another Henry Schein Cares-sponsored initiative designed to increase access to health care for underserved children--the American Dental Association's "Give Kids a Smile" program, which is entering its fifth year.

In addition, "Tomorrow's Dental Office--Today," a state-of-the-art mobile dental facility that Henry Schein created in partnership with the ADA has been donated to the state of Mississippi to provide dental care to underserved people throughout the state.
